(n.) (1) In word processing, a block is a group of characters that you have marked to perform some action on them. For example, to move a section of text, you must first block it. This is sometimes called a block move. To specify a block of text, you press special function keys (or click with a mouse) at the beginning and end of the block. The function keys differ from one word processor to another. Word processors usually display blocks by highlighting them on the screen. (2) In data management, a block is a group of records on a storage device. Blocks are manipulated as units. For example, disk drives often read and write data in 512-byte blocks. (3) In network communications, a block is a fixed-size unit of data that is transferred together. For example, the Xmodem protocol transfers blocks of 128 bytes. In general, the larger the block size, the faster the data transfer rate. (v.) In word processing, to specify a section of text. See definition (1) above. Some applications call this selecting. Desktop: Select down arrow and go to Settings & Privacy > Settings > Blocking. Next to Block Users, enter a username, then select Block App. Go to the page of the user you'd like to block and choose More (three-dot icon) > Block. Select Block to confirm. A blocked user can't communicate with you or see your posts. Likewise, you cannot see theirs. Send a new friend request to unblock. Blocking someone on Facebook is a way to protect yourself from toxic individuals, harassment, or people with whom you do not want to communicate. In this guide, we show you how to block someone using Facebook on the desktop and the Facebook mobile app for iOS and Android. It's easy to block someone using Facebook on a Windows, Mac, or Linux desktop. Go to Facebook.com in a web browser. Select the Account icon (down arrow). Select Settings and Privacy. Select Settings. From the left menu pane, select Blocking. In the Block Users box, enter the name of the person or page you want to block, then select Block. In the confirmation pop-up, tap Block again. Alternatively, tap the Facebook icon in the bottom menu, and then tap Settings > Blocking. Tap Add to blocked list and then enter the name of the person you want to block. Tap Block and then tap Block again to confirm. You blocked the person on Facebook. To unblock the person, tap the Facebook icon in the bottom menu, and then tap Settings > Blocking. Tap Unblock next to the name of the blocked person. Westend61 / Getty Images Blocking is different from unfriending, snoozing, or unfollowing someone. Before you decide to block someone, see if another action might be more appropriate. When you snooze a Facebook friend, you won't see their posts for 30 days, which helps if you need a break. Unfollowing means you won't see someone's posts, which is useful if you'd like to maintain a connection but don't want to encounter what the individual shares. It's easy to follow the person again if you change your mind. Unfriending takes unfollowing up a notch, removing the person's posts from your feed and preventing them from seeing your non-public posts. If you change your mind, send them a new friend request to restart your relationship. Blocking is more serious than the other options. When you block a Facebook user, they can't communicate with you or see anything you post, and you won't see any of their posts or comments. It will be as if you're invisible to each other on Facebook. The blocked user can't invite you to events, see your profile, or send you an instant message through Messenger. If you decide to unblock the person, send them a new friend request. You can block anyone on Facebook, whether they're a current Facebook friend or not. There are several reasons people block others on Facebook. If there are stalking, harassment, or bullying concerns, blocking someone on Facebook gives the person less access to your life. If there's a falling-out between friends or family members, someone may choose to block a user to prevent potential future interactions. Whatever your reasons for blocking someone, blocking is anonymous. Facebook does not notify blocked individuals of their blocked status. Thanks for letting us know! Updated: 11/16/2019 by Computer Hope As opposed to text-based programming, block-based programming refers to programming language and IDE that separates executable actions into modular portions called blocks. These blocks are generally represented with icons that can be clicked and dragged to reorder them. Editable fields, like drop-down menus, allow users to provide further input. This graphical representation of the code can demonstrate the process to new users who may be unfamiliar with programming. Block-based programming can be easier to learn than traditional text-based programming languages, like Python or Java. However, block coding is far more limited than text languages, which require more specific instructions from the programmer to the program. Block-based programming is often used to help children learn how to create basic programs and begin to understand programming. Although blocking goes both ways, meaning that the person who blocked you loses his privileges as well, he can always unblock you to regain those privileges. If you want to make sure that person stays blocked even if he unblocks you, you can do so only if you have the email address he uses to access his Facebook account. Click the padlock icon in the blue bar at the top of your Facebook page. This is a shortcut icon to your important privacy settings. Choose "How do I stop someone from bothering me" to open the blocking form. Enter the email address of the user you would like to block and click "Block." Although the directions say you can also enter a name, since this person has already blocked you, that method will not work. Works: abs, butt, thighsPlace blocks flat on floor wider than hip-width apart, one vertical to body, one horizontal. Stand with right foot on vertical block, left knee raised to hip level, arms extended to right at shoulder level. With right foot on block, lunge left leg to left side just outside of other block, reaching right arm to touch left foot, left arm overhead (as shown). Return to start. Repeat for 1 minute. Switch sides; repeat.Log this workout.Works: thighs, shoulders, arms, abs, obliques, buttStart on all fours with right hand on block that is vertical to body, left hand on floor, left foot flat on horizontal block, toes turned out to left, and right leg extended behind you on floor.
